PREFACE

THE original manuscript from which this volume is printed, is preserved in the India Office, London, where it is known as the first volume of the Court Minutes of the East India Company; and consists of 120 leaves foolscap folio, written in the old court hand of the Elizabethan period. Some few years ago it was sent, with other documents, to the Public Record Office to be calendared, and there fell under the notice of my late father, Mr. Henry Stevens of Vermont, who, ever watchful for new materials for history, especially American, immediately recognised its importance. Finding that only a very small portion had ever been quoted, he determined with the sanction of the Authorities of the India Office, to print it in full, and forthwith employed an expert to transcribe it exactly with all its peculiarities of spelling and contraction. This proved a work of time and of considerable difficulty, as the handwriting is extremely illegible in places, and in some cases several opinions were required to decipher certain passages.

The transcript, on completion, was handed to Messrs. Charles Whittingham and Co. of the Chiswick Press, with instructions to follow copy in the minutest particulars of spelling and contractions, a task which somewhat taxed their resources and ingenuity for peculiar types. The proofs, after careful correction with the transcript, were re-read with the original manuscript by an independent expert, and many and curious were the corrections which resulted.

Mr. Stevens's intention was to have written a lengthy essay by way of introduction, but he was unfortunately prevented by failing health and the pressure of other work. I may add, however, that from his memoranda it appears he was probably more interested in the volume from an American than from an Indian point of view. Perhaps this is pardonable when it is remembered how close were his sympathies and studies with the history and geography of the land of his birth; nevertheless, the importance of the British and Indian aspect of the volume must by no means be lost sight of. Finding that his memoranda were not sufficiently detailed to be capable of extension, Sir George Birdwood has kindly assented to my request to write an introduction.

Of the voyage for the discovery of the North-West Passage here recorded, very little has hitherto been known beyond the details given by Waymouth himself in his Journal, printed by Purchas, volume iii. pages 809-814. The present volume tends to contradict some of the statements there given, for in the opening paragraph of the Journal Waymouth says, his ships were "thoroughly victualled and abundantly furnished with all necessaries for a yeere and an halfe, by the right Worshipfull Merchants of the Moscouie and Turkie Companies," whereas we now learn that the expedition was undertaken at the sole instance of the East India Company, and certainly at first with some opposition from the Moscovie Company. George Waymouth was one of my father's most favourite subjects for study, and I have hopes that some interesting particulars respecting him may yet be gleaned from memoranda made for the introduction to an account of another of his Voyages which is also in the press.

Another point which greatly interested Mr. Stevens in this volume is the mention of the 'May flowre,' and I have heard him express a very decided opinion that the vessel here referred to was undoubtedly the veritable Pilgrim Ship. The mention of Hakluyt is also worthy of attention. On the 29th of January 1600 (see page 123) he is referred to as "Mr Hacklett the historiographer of the viages of the East Indies," and "was required to sett downe in wryting a note of the principall places in the East Indies wher Trade is to be had to thend the same may be vsed for the better instruccon of or factors in the said voyage," and on the 16th of February (see page 143) we find that £10 was paid to him for his "advyses." The further payment of 30*s*. for three maps on the same date, raises the delightful query as to what maps they were, whether three different ones or three copies of Molyneux's "true hydrographical description of so much of the world as hath been hitherto discovered and is come to our knowledge," published just about this time and inserted by Hakluyt in some copies of his 'Principall Navigations,' but of which only some nine or ten specimens have come down to posterity. The last copy came to light in 1881, when it realised £131 at public auction. It would indeed be interesting if another copy should turn up amongst the East India Company's records.

The letters printed on pages 265 to 283, are probably draft letters of the "Company of Levant Merchants," and they commence at the opposite end of the manuscript volume to the minutes of the East India Company. From the first letter being dated March, 1599, while the first entry of the East India Company is September, 1599, it would appear that the book originally belonged to the Levant Company, but was afterwards used by both companies in common. This tends to show that the East India Company was partially an outgrowth of the Levant Company, as several persons mentioned appear to have been prominent members of both Companies, notably Sir Thomas Smith, who held the office of Governor of each (see pages 62 and 281). Under these circumstances it was thought best to print these letters, although they do not pertain directly to the East India Company.

A word as to method of printing. The manuscript has been followed with the greatest possible care, though in one or two instances the greatest experts of the Record Office and others were at variance over a word or figure. The reader's indulgence is therefore requested should he discover an error. The words printed within brackets [ ] are struck through in the original as corrections, but have been printed here, as in many cases they tend to the better understanding of the sentence. The passages printed in italics are interlineated in the manuscript. The Index, which I undertook at my father's request, I have endeavoured to make as copious as possible.

INTRODUCTION

"Qui mare teneat, eum necesse rerum potiri."—CICERO, Ep. ad Att., x.

THE History of the East India Company is a work that has still to be written, although from its rise, at the close of the sixteenth century, to its disappearance thirty years ago, the Company was careful to provide all the necessary material for the task, and to place on formal record the simplest acts of its administration, and the reasons which prompted all its decisions. The value of these contemporary annals—for the Court Books, Factory Diaries, Consultations, and general correspondence, really constitute a continuous narrative—has been only impaired in a small degree by the ravages of time, and by the neglect of less careful custodians than the men who originally determined that their successors in office should gain by their example and experience, and that the Company itself should not suffer in the eyes of posterity from any ambiguity as to its proceedings. The present volume, printed as a labour of love under the direction and at the charge of the late Mr. Henry Stevens, is, so far as print can be made a facsimile of manuscript, identical with the first Court Book kept by the adventurers trading to the East Indies, who received from Queen Elizabeth in the last year of the sixteenth century a patent, or charter, recognizing them as the East India Company, with a monopoly of trade and specified privileges for a given term of years.

The first entry is of the names of those persons who subscribed on 22nd September, 1599, to "the pretended voiage to the Easte Indias, the whiche it maie please the Lorde to psper;" and the last is the report of a committee meeting on 28th June, 1603. Within those four years is contained the germ of every triumph subsequently achieved in the seas and lands of the East. The committees to which the adventurers entrusted the guidance of their affairs not merely laid down the countries with which it was desirable to trade, and the English commodities for which their markets might provide a vent, but they dwelt upon the inconveniences of the long sea route by the Cape of Good Hope to India, and listened with approval to any project, however visionary, for bringing London nearer to the wealthy kingdoms of Asia. As will be seen, their hopes centred in the North-West passage, which Robert Thorne had been the first to advocate in Henry VIII.'s reign as furnishing a road to Cathay and India, and which long continued to dangle before the eyes of the Company as a glorious possibility, never realizing its promise until in our time the discovery has been made, and the feat accomplished, not by naval skill and daring, but by the connexion of the two great oceans of the world by a line of railway. The early references to America contained in this volume will be of peculiar interest to the descendants of the Pilgrim Fathers of the May Flower,[1] who have so rapidly spread themselves over that mighty continent, and who have so brilliantly carried on the commercial traditions of the Mother Country of us all.

The present volume, the first Court Book, furnishes irrefragable evidence that the managers of the East India Company began their undertaking in a thoroughly practical and businesslike manner. They encountered a rebuff, however, on the very threshold of their enterprise, for after three meetings they were obliged to postpone their first voyage until the following year in consequence of the negotiations then in progress with Spain for the conclusion of a peace. The active life of the Company, therefore, did not commence until the meeting at Founders' Hall, on 23rd September, 1600, whereat it was announced that "it was her Ma^es^ pleasure that they shuld proceade in ther purpose." The first steps taken were the appointment of committees to select and purchase suitable vessels for the voyage, as well as the necessary stores and equipment. The Susan, or more

[1] The East India Company possessed in 1659 a ship called the May Flower, which I believe subsequently foundered in the Bay of Bengal. In my Report on the Miscellaneous Old Records of the India Office (H.M.'s Stationery Office, 1879), I ask whether it could have been the same ship as the May Flower, which landed the Dutch, Scotch, and English emigrants from Delft Haven, Southampton, and Plymouth, in New England, 25 Dec., 1620.

strictly the Great Susan, the Hector, and the Assention, were the first three vessels purchased, and then, after protracted bargaining with its owner, the Earl of Cumberland, the Mare Scurge, afterwards re-named the Red Dragon, was procured as the Admiral's ship. These four vessels constituted what is termed "the First Voyage," but a fifth, and much smaller vessel, named the Guift,[1] was added to them for the conveyance of some of the indispensable supplies of the squadron, and it was to be cast adrift at the discretion of the commander. The committees had to report to the Court every particular of their transactions with the owners of the ships, and these form the substance of the first half of the present volume. The inventories of the four ships named, given at pp. 15-20, pp. 22-4, pp. 42-4, are exceedingly curious, and mention everything on board from culverins and masts to "1 pease pott & 2 gridirons." The Mare Scurge, of 600 tons burden, and twice the size of the next largest vessel of the fleet, the Hector, cost £3,700. The Susan was purchased for £1,600; but the prices given for the others are not stated. The Guift cost £300. These sums included everything on board, as well as the vessels themselves, and with regard to two of them it was stipulated that the seller should take back his ship at half price on its safe return.

The ships having been procured, the next thing was to make them ready for sea, and this was done with all dispatch—the workmen on the Mare Scurge being allowed a barrel of beer a day to prevent their running to the ale-house. They were then provided with their proper companies, the Mare Scurge having 200 men, the Hector 100 men, the Susan 80 men, and the Assention 80 men. The sailors received two months' wages in advance, and the officers were treated in an equally liberal manner. Great care was shown in the selection of the latter, and when the Lord Treasurer made a special appeal for Sir Edward Michelborne to be employed in the voyage the Court firmly refused "to imploy anie gent," and requested "leave to sort ther busines wth men of ther owne quality." Captain James Lancaster was appointed Captain of the Mare Scurge, and Admiral of the Squadron. Captain John Middleton commanded the Hector, with the succession to the chief command in the event of Lancaster's death. Both these officers were also appointed principal factors. The Master of the Susan was Samuel Spencer, and of the Assention, Roger Hankin.

The Company had difficulties of its own. Some of the adventurers were not prompt in paying up their instalments, and in April, 1601, the Company was £7,000 in default, and had to appeal to the Lords of the Privy Council for special powers to deal with those that "shewe themselves remisse & vnwillinge to furnyshe there promyssed contribuc̃ons," and this request was granted. The order is a characteristic one, and will be found at pp. 165-6. The Company issued warrants against the defaulters in accordance with this order, and we may assume that this summary mode of dealing was attended with satisfactory results as the subject gradually disappears from the Court Minutes.

On 1st May, 1601, the Court sanctioned the payment of "twentie merkes" to the King of Heralds for assigning Corporate Arms to the Company, but these were not the same Insignia[1] of Community, with the motto "Auspicio Regis et Senatus Angliæ," which, at a later date, became renowned throughout the East. Very stringent rules were also passed for the maintenance of order in the Court, and some of them would not be without their value in a more august assembly at the present day, as, for instance, the regulation providing that no brother of the Company should speak to any one matter "above three sundry tymes." The penalty of doing so was 3s. 4d., a considerable amount in those days. Penalties of different amounts were inflicted for uncivil or intemperate speeches and behaviour, for interruptions, such as private whisperings, &c., for breaking silence when enjoined by the Governor, for leaving the Court without permission, and the refusal to pay these fines or penalties entailed a term of imprisonment. For further information on these points the reader must be referred to pp. 201-4.

It was in June, 1603, that news was received through a Frenchman that left the English fleet at sea of its safe return to European waters, but the first Court Book contains only special reference to the arrival of the Assention, from the officers of which vessel several letters were read in the General Court held on 6th June, 1603. Ten days later the reward of five pounds was assigned to Mr. Midleton of Plymouth "for his paines ryding hether wth the first report of the coming of the Assention out of the East Indies." Special orders were sent down to Plymouth that the ship was not to break bulk until anchored in the Thames. Warehouses suitable for the reception of its cargo were taken, tithes were paid to the Lord High Admiral for a prize captured at sea, and on the 16th June the entrance of the vessel into the river was publicly announced. Six pounds had then to be paid for pilotage and £917 for customs to the King (for James I. had succeeded "Good Queen Bess"), before the adventurers were in a position to know how their first journey had prospered. The Court Book says modestly that it afforded encouragement for a second venture, but for more exact and detailed information concerning the return of the East India Company's first squadron from Asia the reader will refer to the passages themselves.

Very soon after the sailing of the first fleet for India by the Cape of Bona Speransa, the project of discovering a route to the East Indies by the North-West Passage was brought before the Court by "one George Waymoth[1] a navigator." The subject was considered in a dual form—first, whether the Company would take it up and be at the charge of fitting out two or three pinnaces, and secondly, if it would not accept this direct responsibility, would it leave the matter to private men, and reward their discovery by the surrender of the trade by this route for certain years? Whether from fear of losing any of the privileges and advantages of the monopoly of trade with China and the East Indies, or from pure public spirit, it was determined that "the findinge out of the Northwest passage" shall be "consented unto for a voyage." The readiness of the Court to undertake this quest, and to seriously take up George Waymouth's idea can only be understood by realising the state of geographical knowledge at the time, and the hopes of the commercial classes of the discovery of new and short routes to the Indies as well as of new countries.

The discovery of the North-West Passage had been the first ambition of English navigators. Henry VIII.'s letters patent to John Cabot and his three sons in 1496 were for the discovery of this very route.[2] In the next reign Robert Thorne advocated the same project which Sebastian Cabot revived under Edward VI. and Mary, and the expedition of Sir Hugh Willoughby and Richard Chancellor to the White Sea, partly a failure and partly a success, was really another attempt to solve the same problem. The voyages of Martin Frobisher, in 1576-8, were the first to give any tangible ground of hope in the discovery of an inlet on the coast of Labrador running westward, and he was "highly commended of all men for the great hope he brought of a passage to Cathaia." These different attempts made in the course of a century, were so many endeavours to realise the predictions of Seneca and Pulci.[1] The latter clearly prophesied that across the Atlantic would be discovered not only a new world, but a new route to the East.

Political considerations confirmed the traditions kept alive by the bolder geographers and men of science of antiquity, and also of the renaissance. Da Gama's dis-

There was a general looking forward in the thirteenth, fourteenth, and fifteenth centuries, to the discovery of the American and the Australasian continents. The lines of Dante, 1265-1321, in the Vision of Purgatory, in which he alludes to the Southern Cross, are well known. I believe that the leading minds of ancient Rome had an equally clear, if not even a clearer conception of the as yet unrevealed lands lying indefinitely beyond the Atlantic and Indian Oceans. Pliny (Bk. II., Chap. 65) positively asserts the existence of the Antipodes: and records (Chap. 67) the tradition of "certain Indians, who sailing from India" for the purpose of commerce had been driven by tempests into Germany. If the story had any foundation in fact, these Indians could only have been North American Indians, such as the Esquimaux. Seneca's hackneyed line: "Nec sit terris ultima Thule" is not so vague a prophecy of the Americas as it appears separated from the context (Medea, Act II., lines 370-covery of the Cape route to the Indies had been to the benefit of a Portuguese monopoly, not of the commercial interests of Europe at large. For a century the Portuguese enjoyed as undisturbed a supremacy east of the Cape as the Spaniards had for three-fourths that period on the Spanish Main. When the English navy was in its infancy that of Portugal had reached its prime, and was, indeed, squandering the magnificent inheritance of Da Gama and Albuquerque. It seemed to English navigators and merchants that the only practical way of coping with the Portuguese in eastern seas was by the discovery of a new route thither of which England might claim and possess the sole right of usage. In the sixteenth century English naval enterprise found its chief impulse in this consideration, and when the next century was marked by the beginning of an East India Company whose programme was to compete with the Portuguese and Dutch—for the latter had also, and 380): and he really seems to have anticipated the advice of the American humourist in not prophesying before he knew, when his poetical vision of the New World is compared with a prosaic passage, which I believe is now brought to light for the first time in this connexion, from his Quæstionum Naturalium Libri Septem. Herein he distinctly states that the distance from the west coast of Spain to "the Indies" was so short, that it could be sailed over, if the wind was favourable, in a few days. His actual words are: "Curiosus spectator contemnit domicilii angustias. Quantum enim est quod ab ultimis litoribus Hispaniæ usque ad Indos jacet? paucissimorum dierum spatium, si navem suam ventus implevit." It was always the quest and invention of the Indies that inspired Columbus and his English successors in the exploration of the New World; and they but picked up the Americas and the greater part of the Australasias as unconsidered trifles by the way.

before us, embarked on the same undertaking—in a trade by the Cape route, there were many who turned with unconcealed longing to the earlier scheme, as holding forth the promise of easier and more complete success. It was in this hankering feeling after a monopoly and a sway not to be disputed that men like George Waymouth and other advocates of the North-West Passage found their best opportunity and argument.

Such were the prevalent views when Captain Waymouth proposed a fresh search for the North-West Passage, and obtained the sanction of the Court to his design. Although a fleet had sailed only a few months before by the Cape route, then new to Englishmen, the generality of the Company showed every disposition to patronise another attempt to open a route peculiarly dear to the English, and identified with their name. Yet even in this matter, an unexpected obstacle presented itself in the alleged prior rights of the "Muskovia Companie," the parent of the Russia Company of our time. Delays and objections ensued as to the respective privileges of the two Companies, and the deliberations of chosen delegates did not greatly further any practical or definite conclusion. The discussion might have continued indefinitely had not the East India Company taken legal opinion as to their rights, and finding them ample for the purpose in hand sanctioned the scheme as their "Second Voyage" to the Indies. Finding them so firm, the Muskovia Company waived their loftier pretensions, and proceeded to associate themselves in the enterprise. For the purposes of this voyage, a special levy of one shilling for each pound deposited by the adventurers for the Cape experiment was ordered, and special terms, mainly dependent, however, on the result of his voyage, were made with Captain Waymouth. The objects of the journey itself are well expressed on pp. 198-9, whereat are recited some of the chief passages of Elizabeth's patent as well as the reasons which swayed the decision of the Court. The formal agreement between the Company and George Waymouth sets forth that the Governor and Company had deliberated on "the longe and tedious course wch hath benne hetherto houlden by all such as do trade or sayle from these parts of the world in to ye East Indies alonge the coast of Europe and Africa by ye Cape of Bona Esperansa and of the great adventures wch are borne in soe longe a viage by many kinds of daungers offered therin and beinge moved wth great hope that ther is a possibility of discovery of a neerer Passage into ye said East Indies by seas by ye way of the North-west yf the same were vndertaken by a man of knowledge in Navigacon, &c. &c," and had in consequence entrusted the task to Captain Waymouth. In a subsequent passage further details are supplied as to how it was thought this would be effected, and these constituted what would now be termed Captain Waymouth's sailing orders. He was to "sayle toward the coast of Groynland into that part of the open seas wch is described in sundry generall mapps by ye name of fretum Dauies and shall passe on forward in those seas by ye northwest or as he shall fynd the Passage best to lye towards the parts or kinge-domes of Cataya or China, or ye backside of America." Queen Elizabeth attached sufficient importance to the undertaking to write a special letter to the Emperor of China and "Kathia," the use of the double names for the one country implying rather the excess, or cautious completeness, of diplomatic courtesy than geographical ignorance.

Considering the great expense to which the Company went in the matter, the many hopes that were based on the enterprise, and the confidence of the commander himself, the speedy, not to say the ignominious return of the expedition, was extremely disheartening. The Court Book throws no further light on the causes of the failure of this well equipped expedition to achieve what was not then known to be impossible, than to attribute it to the intrigues of the minister or preacher, Mr. Cartwright. But Captain Waymouth endeavoured, and not unsuccessfully, to convince the Court to overlook his failure, and to take up new schemes for the discovery of another route, not by the North-west, but by the South-west, or round Cape Horn. There is little doubt that he would have carried his purpose had he not allowed himself to be drawn into litigation with the Company about what he considered his just claims in the matter of the abortive voyage. These were firmly resisted, with the consequence that he failed not only to obtain his damages, but also to induce the Company to employ him on a fresh voyage, as had been intended.

The opposition of the Court to Captain Waymouth's demands and propositions was made the more inflexible by the safe return of the ships that had sailed by way of the Cape of Good Hope. The arrival of the Assention showed where the practically useful route to the Indies lay. It had its difficulties, delays, and dangers, but in comparison with a mythical North-West passage it acquired greater substantiality as one prosperous voyage regularly succeeded another. Hudson, Button, and Baffin followed at short intervals, and with more favourable results, in the footsteps of Waymouth; but even their successes went to demonstrate the impracticability of the main purpose of their voyages, the opening of a North-West Passage. The first Court Book, characteristic in every particular and important in most, is historically curious as officially marking the first indication of the waning hopes of the school of Cabot and Frobisher, and the rising expectations, soon to be confirmed by facts, of that of Lancaster and Middleton, of Saris and Marlowe. The North-West Passage was a great idea based on an error of fact. The long and tedious route by the Cape was a magnificent certainty which supplied English naval skill and daring with their most profitable and glorious field of enterprise. The pretensions of the Portuguese to a monopoly being steadfastly repelled, the opulent trade with the Indies became the prize in a fair and open competition of merit and energy. The present volume is evidence, not of the triumph of the English Company, but of the way in which they made up their minds to deserve and win it. The fruits of the victory they ultimately secured over all rivals, after a contest of two centuries, by the open ocean round the Cape of Good Hope, have been retained unimpaired now that the narrow seas from Gibraltar to Aden have become, since the piercing of the Suez Isthmus, the general thoroughfare to the Indies; and if the North-West Canadian Pacific Railway should realise the anticipations of its authors the practical solution of the old North-West Passage problem would leave the English-speaking races victors still in the secular and mortal struggle of the leading countries of the civilised world for commercial ascendancy, and political existence. The states which through degenerate weariness and faint-heartedness in well doing, fail in this implacable competition are foredoomed to forced decay.

Undying then should be our gratitude to the founders of the East India Company, for they were indeed the pioneers of the unparalleled colonial and mercantile supremacy of modern England: and we may be sure that wherever are not borne down, as they have been, for well nigh a whole generation among ourselves, by the miserable sense of constantly reiterated public shame, but are kept up by the high hopes on which they are perennially nourished in the invincible Republic of the West, and in the proud dominions of the British Crown in the great South Sea, there the names of these middle class Elizabethan merchant adventurers,—who so well understood, when occasion called, how by transgressing, most truly to keep the moral law,—will be for ever cherished and revered as of "brave men, and worthy patriots, dear to God, and famous to all ages."

"The strong hearts of her sons"

Our own destruction, as a beneficent power among the nations, may be as inevitable, as our peril, arising mainly from the weakness of the historical instinct in the English democracy, at this moment seems imminent; but in the worst case we shall have bequeathed the secret of empire, in the New World and the Old, to more resolute inheritors of our common traditions and splendour.

W[m] Broadebent

THES Comitties thinke that W[m] Brodebent of Graveshend is a verie fitt man to take charge in this viage and to that ende resolve to sende for him and to see how he is affected to the said viage.

A Cheine pumpe for ye Scourge

The Erle of Cumberland adviseth that a Chaine Pumpe is verie necessarie to be vsed in the malice Scurge.

Mr Wyche informeth this assemblie that Capteiñ baker told him that m̃ Sergeaunt heale would be content to deliuer vnto the Companie as ther assignes in the west Cuntrey to be pd him here in London the somme of 400li It is therfore thought good he be talkd wthall and to that ende m̃o howe is intreatid to talke wth srgeaunt heale.

Srgeaunt heale to be talked wth for money

The Eare of Cumbrland sealed a bargaine and sale of the malice scurge to m̃ howe m̃ Eldred m̃ wych and m̃ Chambr and had 2 warrauntes for 1700li the one to m̃ Aldn Bannyng for 1000li the other to Aldn Hollyday for 700ll to be pd this day and his Lp hath putt downe him self an adventuror of 1500li, [in the] and apointed m̃ Cordell an adventuror of 500li, wch two sõmes of adventure together wth the 1700li pd him by the 2 Thrers make vp the whole somme of 3700li being the price of the malice scurge bought of his Lp.

Malice Scourge 1700li pd for the Scourge and the rest of the ships valewe sett downe by the Erle and by Mr Cordell.

A warraunt signed by 4 of the Comitties for the paiment of 600li to m̃ fra: Elington for the provision of Cloth wch warraunt is directed to Aldn Bannyng.

Lovinge frends etc As wee have Intreated you to take some A Comission to Capten Baker and Mr Pope to goe in the West Cuntrey for Provisions &c.

paines for vs in the West Country Where now by Godſ grace you are to take yor Jornie for the procuringe and providinge of such victuallſ and other provision as wee in those partſ are to be furnished of for our pretended viage wch god prosper. The pticulers wherof herafter shalbe expressed soe wee hope that by your good and discreete meanes you will not onely take that good dilligent and provident Care in the providinge of that wch is very good well handled and in all respects soe orderly as the necessetie of so longe a viage importeth The first and most especiall thingſ that wee recoñend vnto your care is for your bisket to see that the same be twice well dryed and that extraordinaryly for it is an extraordinary viage as you knowe and procure as neare as you may to have five Cakes to a pound and that they be whole and sound as neare as you may and for such Cakes as ffalle oute to be rather hollowe or broken that you appte them from the rest and keepe them be them selves that they may be first spent wee thinke it your best place to pvide the same in wilbe lañe Apsome Darmouth, Plimouth and the places to them adjoyninge for yor meale yon may provide the same When yon can gett the best driest and hardest corne and fittest for yor purpose and old corne is best yf yon can gett it and being convrted into meale yon are to take the branne out of it and soe packe it into good drie and sweet caske and to packe it verie hard and Closse and to see the same well hooped and packed cold. Nowe for the Syder yon are to be carefull to provide that wch is good and beinge provided to wracke and for that it is newly made it wilbe good that that when you buy it to condicõn wth them to recſ the same some 6 weekes after or sooner yf you please to your Choise the reason is for that in the meane tyme it may be settled and growe to be fine alsoe some it will excuse, it were not amisse you bringe yor owne Caske for yf you should remove it from hence it wilbe longe before it be fine againe. Alsoe you are to condicõn wth them of whome you buy it that they at their charge deliver it at the water side I meane at the next convenient porte for ladinge of it Nowe the sider beinge bought doth accompte very much to have very good Caske and wel houped and three Iron Hoopes vppon ech end of ech Cask for What prevaileth it to haue good suder and the cask be not good sweet and well hooped and this beinge effected to sent the same to Dartmouth wch must be the place of the assembly of all your prouisions the fittest place for the ꝑvidinge of your suder is Colletton Seaton Axmouthe Newton Bushea and aboute Apsom̃ and Dartmouth.

As for o^r^ Newland fishe if you are to ꝑvide you are alsoe to be carefull to see yf the same not onely be good fish and well handled but also very Dry and that you take take not anie that ether head or tale be anie thinge moist as often tymes that fishe falleth out to be but yf you be forced to take anie in your ꝑtide you may keepe them by them selues to be first spent And this beinge donne you are to lay the same in a good Close and dry Laughte and ꝑvide good store of ffurre to lay vnder vppon and aboute the same to keepe the moist aire from yt and herafter you shall receaue further order from vs ether for the packinge of the same Cask or to bunndell it vpp 200 fishes in a bundell old corne wilbe best yf you can gett yt whether old or newe it must be keild dried and after packed in good cask℘ and as for saynes Hookes and Linnes you are to ꝑvide them at the discretion of Capten Davis such and soe many as you shall thinke fitt and needefull further at your com̃inge into the Country you are presently to enquire and lerne what quantetie of wine and vinegre ther is tobe had and at what price and also the price of beanes and pease both white and gray also what store of Iron hoopes ther are to be had and at what price but not to buy anie untill you heare further from vs for that wee are ꝑtly mynded to send you some from hence Likewise you are to write vs forthw^th^ whether ther wilbe cask had ther sufficient and good to serue what you shall neade there or not for y^t^ yf you cannot fitt your selues thear wth such and as much there as you shall neede that then vppon notice therof from you wee may supply o^r^ want℘ from hence Alsoe you are to certefie vs of the state and price of all those ꝑvisions that wee you in charge to ꝑvide and therw^th^ all yor opiñions howe you shalbe able to effect and accomplish the same as neare as you may wee are Informed as you knowe of a prize brought to Plimouth wch some 40 tt^es^ of Cassalla wines wch o^r^ desire is that one of you wth as much speade convenient as you may for to taste them and to knowe the lowest price of them and findinge them good of that sorte of wines and such as will serue o^r^ tornes to buy them yf you may haue them at a reasonable rate to say not passinge 10 or 11^li^ p tt^es^ at the most but for lesse what you may it is a kinde of wine not vendible here in o^r^ Country and they haue benn sold here in London at 7^li^ p tt^es^ very good wines but yf you cannott gett them as aforẽs^d^ then may you pcure the loest price of them and take the pties pmise for some 12 daies respect in that tyme at your choise ether to take or leaue them and so forthw^th^ to certefie vs thereof yo^u^ may shew them that yf yo^u^ buy them they shall have their present for them wch wilbe some cause to see them the better cheape and yf at your cõminge hether they be not landed out of the ship wee would you could agree wth them to deliver them heere at his charges and adventure though they cost vs the more as of necessetie they will what further directions to give you presently wee knowe not for the pvidinge of these thinges and doe referre vs to your good discretiõn and care for the managinge and well orderinge of these businesses. By this you perceaue what o^r^ desire is to haue donn wch yf you cannot accomplishe as you would yet as well and as neare as you may.

Nowe resteth order and meanes to be taken for the furnishinge of you wth monies for the paiment of the pvisions aforesaid wch o^r^ desire ys that you take vpp in the country soe much monie as you may and to give yor bills in Alde^r^ Banninges Alde^r^ Hollidaies for the repayment of it heer wth billes wee will see well p^d^ and for the better obteininge of monie ther wee haue pcured my Lo: Treasurers lr̃e to the receivers and customers of Dovor and Cornewall to helpe you vnto such moneis as they haue in their custodie of her ma^ies^ as the said lr̃e doth import wch wee delivered unto yor you may show as occasion may serue to such as it is directed and what you doe receive of them you may give them billes in the Alderman aforesaid for the repaym^t^ of yt heere wch shalbe well p^d^ and wth what by these not exceedinge 1000^li^ or two at the most.

you are to leaue this lre wth Mr Ellecot at Exeto^r^

meanes you shall not be able to furnishe yor want$\wp$ wee will vppon intellegence from you furnish you from hence from tyme to tyme in the best order wee may and for an earnest pennye wee will give order that you shall receive presently this next weeke in the country 5 0 600^{li} but the more you cann ꝑcure in the country the lesse charge and adventure wee shalbe at in sendinge downe of yt from hence ffurther for Royall$\wp$ of plate wee pray you that you wilby all good meanes possible procure as many as yo^{u} may of 8 &c 2 at the least Rate you may and for maym^{t} of them ether to pay them ther yf you can̄ get monies or else to give yor bill$\wp$ as afores^{d} or to take some short tyme yf wee may send the same downe yf they will not take their monies heer for such as you can gett to bagg them vp and seale the bagg$\wp$ and make them and them in some sure and trustye mennes hand$\wp$ some in one mannes hand$\wp$ and some in another vntill o^{r} further order also you are to ꝑcure some out of Brittaine from Mort and St Mallowes both by your owne meanes of yor frend$\wp$ although you deliuer monies ther in their Country to such m̄chaunt$\wp$ as trade for them plac$\wp$ before hand beinge two sure men to some 200^{li} and some 300^{li} some more some lesse as you shall thinke the men to be of honesty and abilitie to performe such bargaine as they shall make wth you wch must be for so much English monies as they binde them selues to deliuer you so many Royalls of plate of 8.4. and 2. by such a tyme wch tyme must be at furthest the midle or end of novem^{r} herof you are to certefye vs what you thinke you shalbe able to help vs vnto by that tyme and that as soone as you may for that wee cannot furnish o^{r} selues ther wee may take some other order heere for o^{r} bisket wee hold it very necessary that the bakers that bake it stand bund for the same shall continew good and sweet for 2 yeares at Plimouth ther is the m̄alice skourges boate wch ship we have brought and therfore are to have the boate wch we pray you may be trim̄ed and sent vp hether by the first convenient meanes you may and to se whether she may be worth trim̄inge or no and to advise vs therof forthwth at Captin Davis his com̄inge downe wee will write you further whose opinion order and direction for the

James Dunkiñ.

THIS generall Assemblie being called together as well to acquaint them of the proceading of the busines hetherto ꝑformed in the preparatioñ of the voyage as to informe them of the slacknes of many of the Contributo^rs^ who had sett downe ther names and ther sommes pretended to be adventured and had hetherto brought in noe moneys to furnishe the provision, first the said Assemblie were putt in mynde of ther geñall Petition and projecte of the viage wch was offered in all ther names to the ll: of her Ma^es^ most honorable privy Councelł, wherby ther Lordships were humbly intreated by them to Solicite her ma^e^ in ther names, for her gratious Licence and assent that they might vndertake a voyage to the East Indies for the hon^r^ of o^r^ Cuntrey and for the advancem^t^ of the trade of merchaundize of this Realme conteyning in ther said Petition divers Clawses for the furtheraunce of the said viage. It was alsoe remembred vnto them that the Lordes having acquainted her ma^e^ wth ther said Petition did retorne them her ma^es^ gratious aunswer and free assent therunto geaving them incoragem^t^ to goe forward wth assuraunce that ther shuld noe staye be made of ther vyage wch was certyfyed vnder the handes of the Lord Threẽ Lord Admirall L Chamƀleyn S^r^ [Robt] Wm Knowles S^r^ Roƀ^t^ Cycill and Secretery Herbert by a lr̃e bearing date the 16 day of Septẽber last. And they were further putt in mynde that vppon this Warraunt Certefyed by the lordes of her ma^es^ Assent and assuraunce to proceade the Companie had since mett together and at ther Gen^rall assemblie holden the 23. of Septemb̃ [last following] they, or the most of them having vnder ther owne handes sett downe ther adventures [had] did make choice of Seventeene of the said Contributors whom they appointed to be comitties to dispose and manage the whole busines and preparatio̅n for the said viage. According to wch Co̅mission geaven the said Cõmitties had hetherto proceaded and had defraied in the [said] preparation of the said viage and stoode ingaged to be aunswerd by exchaung and otherwyse for the so̅me of xx m^t poundes at the least; The busines being thus farr proceaded in they were further geaveñ to vnderstand That many of the companie who had sett downe ther adventures begaune to w^thdrawe ther purpose of ꝓceading and w^thheld ther paym^t of ther moneys vppon some Rumo^rs or doubtes geaveñ out that the viage was lyke to receave so̅me stay for the removing and clearing of wch doubt that meanes had bene made by so̅me of the Comitties to the lordes of the Councell for ther certifycat to the adventurers that they might wth full assuraunce proceade w^thout any just cause of doubte, Who thervppon wrote ther lrẽs to Generalyty confirming ther former lrẽs of certificat that the said viage shuld receave noe stay or interruptio̅n wch lrẽs being vnder the handes of the Lord keeper the L Thrẽr the L Admirall Sr Rob̃^t Cicell Sr John ffortescue, the L Chief Justice, and Mr Secretary Herbert were openlie read and beare date the 26 day of this instant october [and w^thall it was delivered unto the̅m]. In wch last recyted Lrẽs besides the warraunt of incoragem^t geaveñ to the Companie to proceade It was notid unto the̅m that the actio̅n vndertakeñ by the̅m was a publike action and not to be dallied w^thall [and to that the] and therfore did require that the names of such as did ether w^thdrawe them selfes or practise to w^thdrawe others from proceading thein shuld be certefyed to ther Lorshipes that they might examine the reaso̅n of ther discoragem^t. After the discourse of all wch severall matters and proceadinges all the said Assemblie by generall consent did agree to bring in ther moneys wch was by former [assent] order payable the most of them being behinde but for the second paym^{t} wch was payable this present day and some of them being behinde both for the first and seconde payment, [saving some] amongest wch only two or three of contributors, ther present denied to adventure at all viz John Bate Robt Osseley Nathaniell Martyn and Hughe Hamersley the said John Bate geaving his aunswer that he was disapointed by some that shuld have ioyned wth him in the adventure of CC^{li} and did fall from him, so that he could not adventure for his owne adventure above C^{li}, and the said Robt Osseley Nathaniell Martyn and Hughe Hamersley alledging that they held them selfes discharged by a clawse that was sett downe in the last generall assemblie, wch was that he that brought not in his adventure by the last of September shuld not be pmitted to adventure at all.

The generalytie having thus agreed to bring in ther monies to further the expedition of the viage they required that order might be taken for all others wch wthheld ther contributions and came not at this assembly to geave ther assentes, that they might be called vppon to bring in ther money or to geave ther reason of wth holding it to thende, that according to the Councelles lres they might called before ther Ll: to aunswer the cause yf they did deny to adventure or would not bring ther moneys as by ther owne agreem^{t} they are to doe.

And forasmuch as the Pattent is already drawen and in the handes of Mr Attorney ready to be pfytted by the course of wch Pattent the Companie is to consist of a governo^{r} 24 Comitties and the generalyty this Court have by a most free Election, noiated for ther governo^{r} Mr Thomas Smyth Ald^{r} whose name they do desire may be sett downe in the Pattent to be offred to her Ma^{ie}, and allowed for ther first Governo^{r}.

And whereas hetherto ther hath beene appointed by the generalyty but 17 Comittyes to dispose and manage the affaires and busines of the trade, nowe forasmuch as by the Pattent ther is to be apointed 24 Comitties for that purpose Ther is choice made at this Assemblie of the full number of fowr and twenty whereof some part are of the former Comitties heretofore imployed in the said busines and the residewe are supplied out of the Geñalyty. Soe as the names of all the said Comitties as they are nowe agreed vppon be as hereafter followeth videlt:

Vppon complaint made to ther Llp by the newe aucthorised Companie of merchauntp preparing to trade to the East Indies that certen persons wch had heertofore promised and assured by ther subscriptions when the said voyage was first proiected to advaunce certen sommes of money for the proceading in the same vppon confidence [had] and Assurance Whereof the preparation for the said voyage hath bene vndertaken and advaunced to a full redines and yet nevertheles that the said psons would since vppon some vndue pretences retract ther former promyses in that behaulf whereof would ensue that by the want of ther promised contributions the voyage must breake Ther Llp vppon due consideration howe greatlie it doeth import the honor of the Realme and the state of the present affaires thereof that the said voyage shuld not be hindred or overthrowne by any such default [or accident] and indirect meanes and considering also howe weake allegations of excuse have bene made by the persons refusers It hath bene therfore this day ordered by ther LLꝭ that notw^th^standinge the pretences of the foresaid ꝑsons they shall w^th^out further delay and namelie by satherday next furnishe ther promysed contributions or otherwyse that order shalbe taken by the LLꝭ wth suche as shall refuse the same to Comitt them to prison vntill they Conforme them selfes and make satisfaction according to their subscriptions 1600 14 Jan.

This is a true copie of ther LLꝭ order wch by ther LLꝭ cōmaundem^t^ is entred into the Regester of the Councell.

Thomas Edmondes.

Vppon the hearing of wch order it was conceaved by divers of the generalytie that yf the moneis dewe by the said refusers were brought in according to the said order that then ther shuld be no neade of the supplying of ij^s^ in the ꝗ vppon everie adventuro^r^ as was intended by the last gen̄all Court but when it was related vnto them that notw^th^standing all the contribution wch was sett downe would fall too short to supplie [the] a convenient adventure by 4 or 5 thousand poundes . and that of [necessitie we] necessitie the ij^s^ in the ꝗ was to be brought in the gen̄alytie did wth one assent confirme ther former order and were content to bring in the said supplie accordinglie.

It was also ordered that a Common seale shuld be made for the vse of the Companie and the rather that the same beinge made everie contributo^r^ might have a bill of adventure of his Contribution vnder the Comōn seale of the Companie. A comon seale.

Touching the North west passage.

Courte touchinge the Northwest passage to move the Muscovia Companie to relinquishe their Claime into the said passage for the tearme of xv yeares to the end this Company may proceade therein. he the saide m^r Deputie accompanied wth m^r Grenwell did since the said Last Courte reporte to the Governo^r and divers of the said Muskouia Companie assembled togeather and propounded vnto them the mo͡cõn of this fellowshipp touchinge the said passage who gave them this aunswer that they havinge an inheritaunce in the same [said passage] would not by any meanes relinquishe their owne interest therein. for any tearme but yf this Companie would be willinge to joyne wth them in the discoverye of the said passage they would receive as manie of this Companie as will venture wth them and geave them the freedome of the said passage and all plac̊ discovered therby in ꝑpetuity wch aunswer beinge Considered of at this Court It is supposed that vnder this offer the Muskovia Companie may be at libertie to venture what they list, and so will supply them selves litle or nothinge and the whole or the greatest ꝑte of the adventure will lye vppon this Companie and the discoverye beinge made at their Charge a trade shalbe putt into the other Companies handes for litle or nothinge disboursed or adventured by them for avoidinge of wch doubt It was propounded to the generalitie whether they would be willinge to adventure wth the Muskovia Companie suche sommes as they had already sett downe yf the Muskovia Companie wilbe Content to seclude for the terme of xv yeres all suche of ther owne felowship as will not joine in adventure wth the brethren of this Companie in the discoverie or findinge out of the said passage. Whervnto this Companie do agree and vppon that condition do yelde that all suche sõmes of money as they have already sett downe towardes the furnishing of the voyage for the said Northwest shall be ioyned wth the adventurors of the Muskovia Companie that will proceade together wth them in the said voyage and do require that the booke may be carried abroade amongest the residewe of the Companie that have not yet sett downe ther contributions . And it is ordered that the meane While m^r Deputie and the residewe of the Comitties appointed at the last generall Court shall repaire to ye Governo^r and Companie of the Muskovia merchaunt^s at ther generall Court to conferre wth them and to agree that ther shall noe more of that Companie claime the benyfyte of the freedome of the said passage yf it be discovered duringe the terme of xv yeres. then suche as shall ioine wth this Companie in the contribution And that all suche of this felowship as shall adventure in the said voyage the so̅me of x^li shall have the freedome of the said discovery to them and ther posteritie vnder the Comõ seale of the said Muskovia Companie for ever. 1601 13 Oct.

This Companie havinge alsoe heretofore resolved to sett out a seconde supply to the East Indies [of one] by the cape of bona Esperansa, and the booke having bene carried abroade amongest the breethren of this Companie to sett downe the Contributions it appeareth that the Whole adventure already sett downe doeth not exceade the valewe of Eleven thowsand poundes. wch carrieth noe convenient proportion to sett out any voyage at all. And it is Notyfied to this Co^rt by Mr Governo^r that he beinge of late wth my L Admirall and Mr Secretary at the Court they enquired of him what was the cause that the Companie were so slacke in secondinge ther former voyage considering that the Duche nation had soe honorably gone throughe wth ther voyage and retorned againe wth soe good successe notinge vnto them that this Companie were not soe respective of her ma^es hono^r and the hono^r of ther owne Cuntrey as were fytt they shuld be. Whervppon it was aunswered by some of the Companie that one especiall hinderaunce of the [slacke] proceading of this voyage is that it is doubted that for some private respectes the Comitties may be drawen in the preparation of the shippinge for the voyage [to fall in to] to preferre suche shippes as shall not be so serviceable as were convenient. Ffor the avoidinge of wch inconvenience. and to geave furtheraunce to the speady preparation of the voyage It is ordered that Noe ship shalbe prepared or enterteyned for the said voyage vntill the name of suche ship be notyfied to the generalitie at a generall Court and the ge̅rall consent of the Companie geaven to certen Comitties to contract for [the] everie or

THIS Court beinge assembled vppon occasion that the two Pynnaces or barkes were neere discharged accordinge to order geaven by the last assembly of comittees Mr Governor thought meete to propound severall questions to the generalty [about] touchinge the sale of the barkes and all other provisions therin and about; wch wth assent of the said Generaltie are agreed vppon as hearafter followeth on the other side.

1. Imprimis The stronge beere to be sould after the rate of fowre pounde p tonne to such of the Company as will buy it yf not to them to others at the same rate.
2. Itm they who have the caske in wch the beere is shall pay for the same caske at the rate of 20^s p tonne.
3. All those wch will have the said beere shall fetch it from thence by to morowe night oreles by Wednesday night at the furthest.
4. Their Sacke to be laid vp in a seller for some [foure] 6. daies the caske beinge filled wth ye same wine [vp] and after that tyme sale to be made therof.
5. That there be a dry warehouse provided for their beefe and Porke and therof sale to be made.
6. It is in conclusion agreed that these provisions aforenamed the two barkes and all other thinge whatsoever in or about the said barkes shalbe sould. and for the pformance therof the Generaltie doe refer the sale of all to m^r Governo^r dep: and Comittees to do therin as in their opinions shall seeme best for the vse and behoofe of the Company. 1600 18 Oct.

Mr Ald Holiday havinge in his hand^e of the Companies money to the valewe of 38^li 6^s 9^d [as appeareth by account] would stay in his hand^e some [sixe] 8 or [seaven] 9 pound^e therof wch was alledged to be [laid out by] geaven away by his wife but this Court not assentinge thereto have generally agreed that he shall bringe in the said som̃e of 38^li 6^s 9^d to the Threr̃.

The said Alderman Holiday beinge in arrerages for monies wch he should have supplyed towardes the discovery by the northwest It is agreed that he and all others who have not supplyed toward^e the said discovery accordinge to the ordenances of the Company in that behaulfe provided shall have such som̃es defaulted out of their adventures into ye East Indies by the Cape of Bona Esperansa as by an order of the xj^th of January 1601 was sett downe for such as did [incurre] offend contrary to the tenor of that lawe and to be put to accompt.

LETTERS.

To ye Ambassd^r^ Mr Lyllo resident at Constantynople. 1599 Marche.

HONORABLE. wee re^d^ y^r^ Lo: Lrẽ: of the 17 of November 99, wherbie it appeareth that the Graundsignior hath Roially graunted all caputulations, saving the consulage of foresteers wherin his redines of assent also appeared but that yo^u^ were crossed by the Frenche Ambassad^r^, of whose proceadinge besides the advyse wch yo^u^ wrote vs and [of] [wch] whereof m^r^ Coltherst did in lyke sorte advertyse vs [in the said conten] touching yor crossinge and contention for the [said] said foresteers. wee were made acquainted by [Mr Secretary] Sr Robt. Cycill. by occasion of a complaint wch the frenche ambassad^rs^ lieges heer had made to her ma^ie^ and wee were required to write vnto yo^u^ as by order from her ma^ie^ to desist all contention [for ye] wth the frenche [for] in that behaulf leaving the dutche and others to ther owne election to patronize them selfes [as] wher they seemed best [affection] affected w^th^out vrging or compelling them by comaundem^ts^ procured. of wch order geaven vs yor [weare] L. hath bene ptelie advertysed [since] by a private Lrẽ written yo^u^ by Mr Stap. But forasmuch as wee do collecte by the cowrse yo^u^ [purpose] take in sendinge hether [G^r^] signio^r^ Paull Pinder to her ma^ie^ to acquainte her highnes wth the proceadinge of the frenche that ther [is] hathe bene some further and more indirecte workinge in this matter then yo^u^ do [comitt to] mencon in yor Lr̃es sent to vs and for that wee do observe by the ernest soliciting of the cause heer to her ma^ie^ that the 1599 Marche. ffrench [leaveth] omitteth [noe] no meanes or oportunety [omitted] to prevaile in the obteyning his purpose. The matter being both an hono^{r} and a benifite to [w^{ch}] that side or part wch [soever] prevaileth in the contention [wee thinke it.] And albeit we are willed to signefie to your Lordsh^{s} it is her ma^{es} pleasure that yo^{u} shuld take no course to enforce the dutche or other fforesteers to come vnder yo^{r} consulage, yet wee thinke it wysdome not to loose anie advauntage, but to reserve the cause in equall termes vntill yo^{u} receave a more absolute order in Comission ymediatlie from her ma^{ie} and therfore referre o^{r} selfes to yor L. approved care of the cause wch being entred in to so farre as it is would not be remisselie lost or lett [passe] pas.

And touching the accomptes and other pticlers by yo^{r} L. menconed to be sent by Signior Paull Pinder wee hope wee shall receave them at his coming whereof wee will wryte yo^{u} o^{r} [conceiptes] opinions as oportunety shall pmitt. the meane tyme wee propounde vnto yor L. [for] in the name of the generalyty the accepting of o^{r} former motion wch is the allowaunce of 3000 cheskeens to begynne from m^{r} Bartons decease for y^{e} defraying of yo^{r} charges and expences because the companie would gladlie stande vppon a certenty of ther charge as well for yor L as for Mr. Coltherste the Consull at Aleppo wherto wee have [found] heretofore found him inclynable. And wee move yo^{u} againe the rather for that yt appereth the graund signio^{rs} allowaunce is nowe aunswered and is lyke to be contynued wthout stay or question and also for that divers of yor frendes here did [not only] vndertake in yor behaulfe that ye choice of you [beinge chosen] that [behaulfe yor enterteynment] for her ma^{ies} ambassador should not only be a saving co^{r}se to the comp. but that yo^{u} would willingly accept [therof] of the allowaunce of 3000 c^{ns} wch was supposed to be more then yo^{u} [could well expend] neade to expende but only in respecte of the first yeres charge vppon wch it was considered that yo^{u} shuld have it allowed yo^{u} from m^{r} Bartons death. Our care to avoide the sending [question vse] of Billes of exchaung made vppon vs [as] ether for venice [and here in] or for England; and also all question of accepting the same, when they come vppon vs vnexpected and wee vnprovided hath moved vs to charge all o^{r} goodes. coṁing to Constantynople and Aleppo besides ther consulage wth $\frac{1}{2}$ doller by way of lone vppon every kersey every Cth of tynn and every Cth of dry skynes to be aunswered here at v^{s} vj^{d} the doller and to contynue the charge thereof for the supporting of bothe yor allowaunces because [wee] wee would be loth yo^{u} shuld seeke further of, for yor necessary and convenient supplies then the places of yor residences or neare thervnto. And wee doubt not but the said consulage and Lone together wth suche forestere consulage as shall occurre will liberally wth an ouerplus support [the needfull] yor nedefull and convenient expense. wch said allowaunce of 3000 c^{ns} p̄ anñ yf it please yo^{u} to accepte shalbe from tyme to tyme aunswerd yo^{u} by the Consull of Aleppo or soe much thereof as shall make vp the consulage and Lone money collected at Constantynople to ryse to the said [some] sōme of 3000 c^{ns}.

Another motive that hath drawen vs in to ye taking of this course of a sett and standyng charge is some trowbles that hathe happened vs of late by reason of a demaunde made by Mr John Bate to her ma^{ies} privy Counsull for the paym^{t} of v^{Cli} by a bill of exchaunge sent by Mr Barton vppon the late L Ther^{r} for soe muche pretended by [him] the said Bate to be taken [vp vppon m^{r} Bates fact^{r}] at Constantynople [vppon his] from his factor violently by cold of her ma^{ies} comission [to serve his turne to] to serve the ambassadors tvrne to goe wth the graund signio^{r} in to the Hungaria warres, [wch demaunde] vppon wch wee were convented before ther hono^{rs} divers tymes and required to take some course to see him contented because as they affirmed m^{r} Barton was placed ambassador by o^{r} mediation. [and of w] and for the protection of o^{r} trade of whose service ther honours alledged her ma^{ie} had no vse, but wee [examyning the the wee] lokinge into the manner of the growing of the debt founde that the greatest part of the said v^{Cli} grewe vppon an accoumpte betwene the said m^{r} Barton and m^{r} Bate and that only 400 Cheskeens was taken vp by cōmaundem^{t} [whereof] wherein [three] divers others besides Mr Bate were interessted [but] [yet] in conclusion

1599 Marche. wee [have absolutely] absolutelie denyed to pay anie part of the said v^Cli^ because the Bill came not vppon the companie, and also because ther are other billes of like kinde wch the said m^r^ Barton gave to other pticler men for divers great somes of money that would be required to be p^d^ by vs yf we shuld pay m^r^ Bates. [But of this matter] Of wch proceading before the Counsell wee doe the rather geave you a tast, because vppon o^r^ deniall [m^r^ Bate] to geave satisfacc̃on. [he seemeth] Mr Bate seemeth to [have a] depend vppon some course or meane to recover his debt in Turky ether vppon Peter Gallaunt or John Saunderson who deliuered the money or els by some other [meanes] extra-ordinarie course wch is doubted by some may concerne the companie or [preiudice] touche her ma^ie^ in hono^r^ whereof we pray yor L. have a care and to observe that ther be noe indirecte dealinge geaven way vnto no^r^ [wee] her ma^ie^ or the companie touched ether in damage or reputation by [defaulte] anie default or neglecte of the cause.

Wee do verie well allowe of yor L course taken fo^r^ the satisfaction of the dragoman, and do thanke yo^u^ for yor care in the prevention of his coming hether and for all other yor carefull and painefull offices done for the good of the Companie wch wee pray yor Lo. contynue.

[It was vndertaken be shuld accepte of.] [For anie other speciall Other] For anie other speciall or pticler matter we have not at this tyme further to inlarge vnto yor L. other then [th] onlie this main and principall point wth wch wee of purpose reserve for a conclusion [conclude wch is for the better y^r^ L. better remembring thereof] which is this, that it hath bene moved both by yor frendes and others that wee shuld geave y^r^ L. this frendlie note (wch to yor modest disposition and tractable nature is thought to be sufficient) to have a care that the hono^r^ of y^r^ place doe not carry you into the erro^r^ of y^r^ predecess^r^. to deale in thinges imptinent to y^r^ imploym^t^ [place] nor that yo^u^ [or move yo^u^ to carrie soe highe a course to] beare yor selfe aloft in so highe a course as that o^r^ people seeme to be despised by yor L. [and] Nether that the authorytie of yor commission be extended or stretched to the cõmaundinge of any mans goodes further then for yor necessarie supplie according to our actes and ordenaunces [and contracte] and according to ye meanes wch shalbe apointed by vs for the aunswering of y^r allowaunce agreable w^th [the] o^r contracte made to her ma^ie or by agreem^t made betwene yo^u and vs [too farre too farre into excessive expence for that the charge therof is to be borne by vs that are m̃chaunt^e who have bene reproved and for p̃mitting some of o^r Ambassad^rs to ruñe into suche insolent co^rses of [ryott] excesse and ryot as they have done and have not in tyme acquainted suche of her ma^ies counseill as might have repressed the extremyty thereof and for y^t wee have not taken good securyty for ther better carriage and behavio^r of ther place.] 1599 Marche.

The exceading of wch Limites by m^r Barton was imputed vnto vs by the Ll. of the Counseill as o^r fault for that wee [for that wee] had not taken good securyty for him for his conteyninge him self wth in some reasonable boundes [Limit^e] Thus not doubting of y^r L care both of yor owne hono^r and of that dewe regarde wch is to be had of vs who are willing to beare all reasonable charge that may conveniently be required to support the same wee comitt yor [and] Lordship and the direction of yor affaires to God. London this day of Marche 1599

Yo^r L. loving frendes.

These being kepte vntill the of marche. 99 we add for further advyse to y^r L. touching the obteyning of foresteers, that wee were [certefyed] required by m^r Secretary that excepte ther were the like course taken wth the frenche ambassad^r at Constantynople to restraine him from vsing of any meanes by procuring or inviting [forcyble vrging] the Dutche and other nations foresteers to come vnder his protection that yo^u shuld not neade to geave way [to yor pre] or forbeare any [lawfull] reasonable [anie meanes] course to procure them to come vnder yor protection. and wee do not heare of any [course] order that hath bene taken to restraine the frenche ambassado^r yor competito^r therfore o^r advyse is that you geave him no advauntage but wee leaue yo^u to yor owne wysdome and discretion to proceade [prevaile] therin [as yo^u cañ best] by the best meanes yo^u can devyse to prevayle in yor purpose Wee send yo^u here [in] inclosed the copies of o^r 1599 Marche. severall actes of court vnder the hande or fyrme of o^r secretary concerning the Lone of ½ doller vppon a kersy, C of tynn, C of cony skins &c to thende that yf anie fact^r for any of the Company shall ether deny or delay [to satisfie] to pforme o^r order therin, or in the payment of consulage that you may sease ther goodes and levy the sommes thervppon dewe by o^r orders. And otherwyse proceade wth them for their contempte of o^r actes [as shall stande wth good discretion] and the aucthoryty of yor place as [is] shall stande wth good discretion. And so as before we comytt yo^ur L. to the tuytion of the most highest.

To ye Wo: m^r Richard Colthurst Consull for ye Right Wo. Companie of the Levant merchaunt.

SR o^r hartie cõmendacõns premysed &c: yor last of the 29th of September w^th [th] yor former therin recyted we have rec^d And wher yo^u seeme discoraged [by] to accepte of a certen allowaunce from the companie to beaṛg yor charge in Aleppo [of consulage] according to the offer made yo^u of the ½ Consulage wch discoragem^t groweth as yo^u alledge by reason of the Dutches ther discoverie of the East Indies. Wee see not [cause] anie reason whie that shuld be any iust discoragem^t or cause to move yo^u to chaunge yor former opinion for that wee o^r selfes whom the care of o^r trade concerneth more then this [pticleṛ contracte] pticler contracte may concerne you are noe way doubtfull of anie preiudice that caṅ [growe] spedelie growe vnto vs by ther discoverie for ther are manie impediment that may hinder [a trade of soe] ther voiages of soe longe [and great] courses and great adventures. and may move the dutche m^r chaunt rather to frequent a knowen and peaceable trade in Turkey then hassard the daunger of Seas and enemyes of soe longe a circuite and infestious clymates. [And besides] Nether it is o^r intention [is not] to tye yo^u to any inconvenience but for o^r better satisfaction in mainteyning a knowen charge. wee wishe yo^u to accepte of it for a yere or too or so longe as yo^{u} shall finde yo^{u} may frugallie handle the matter for yor owne good and o^{r} [benefites] ease bothe wch wee wishe to concurre or els wee would be loth to move yo^{u} therto. Wee rather incyte yo^{u} [heretofore] to this course for that wee doubt not but the Ambassado^{r} will accepte of a sett allowaunce for ye defraying of his charges at Constantynople. to w^{ch} [ende] effecte wee have written him. And to thende that both a competent and convenient maintenanc' may be levied to defray both his and yor charges wee have ordered by acte of Courte that all shippes that coṁe for [ye Aleppo] Allexandretta Constantynople or other the portes of Turkey besides ther consulage shall by ther goodes contynue the Lone of ½ doller vppon a kersy and the like of every C of Tynn cony skines &c. returning for the somes lent [by] billes of exchaung at vs [iiij] vj^{d} the doller. wch consulage and Lones together wth the helpe of the consulage of foresteers, we doubte not but the same wyll defray [all] bothe yor severall charges wth an overplus. and wee have geaven order to ye said ambassado^{r} to make over vnto yo^{u} his billes [of exchaunge] for 3000 c^{ns} yerelie. or for so much as together wth his receipts of consulage and Lone at Consta: shall make vp 3000 ch^{ens} whereof we pray yo^{u} see him supplied. The vncertenty of his paiments and acceptation of his billes at venice besides, the repaiment of those billes by exchaung here cõming many tymes vnseasonably to ye Company when wee [they] were vnprouided hath moved vs to take order for the bearing of o^{r} charge w^{t}hin the compas of the places of o^{r} trade or chiefest residence. 1599 Marche.

Touching the envyous and violent courses taken by the frenche ambassad^{r}. for the obteyning of the dutche foresteers besydes the advyse wch wee re^{d} both from [yo^{u} and] [Mr Lello the Ambassad^{r}] the Ambassador and from yor self wee [founde] hadd some notice [and] [experience] heer, for the frenche ambassad^{r} Liedges in London [being therein instructed] by order and instruccons from the ffrenche king. had made a great complainte to her Ma^{ie} against her highenes Ambassado^{r} at Constantynople and by his [importunety] complaint soe farre prevayled wth her Ma^{ie} that her highnes gave order to vs by m^{r}

1599 Marche. Secretaries appointem to wryte to [the Ambass] Mr Lyllo that he shuld noe further contend for the said forresteers but to leave everie foresteer nation to ther owne voluntarie choice what [consull] protection they would accept of ether Englishe or ffrenche. but notw^th^standing for asmuche as to prevaile in the obteyning of these foresteers is not onlie honorable considering the contention had therabout but alsoe profitable wee have written to ye Ambassado^r^ to preserve the cawse in equall termes. w^th^out preiudice vntill it shall appeare what further cowrse her ma^ie^ will directe vppon information brought over by Signio^r^ Paull Pynder [by] whom [the] Mr Lyllo sendeth over [over] of purpose to acquainte her Ma^ie^ with his proceadinges, and because yor [travell] favor wth the Bashawe may make muche to the obteyning the dutche consulage. wee pray yo^u^ vse all reasonable and fitt meanes to effecte the same or to pserve the state of the cawse w^th^out preiudice vntill her Ma^ies^ pleasure be knowen. and yo^u^ further thereof advysed.

We pray you contynue yor care to discouer and prevent the privie traffique of o^r^ facto^rs^ to Marcelles. and to all other places vppon frenche shippes or otherwyse whereof yo^u^ have re^d^ any suspition by any report or other probable presumption and yf yo^u^ shall finde any ground of suche practyses we desire you to take suche a cowrse therin as yo^u^ shall finde expedient, for the best prevention of suche mischiefes is to stay ther begynninges wherin wee doubt not yor [discretion and] good and discreete care.

For the matters written vnto you out of percia concerning Sr Anthony Shurley and his proceadinges. Wee concurre wth yo^u^ in opinion therein expecting little good of ther event wishing them better successe then wee [have looke for therin] by anie probabylyty cann hitherto coniecture. wee sende you here inclosed the copie of o^r^ severall actes of Court [wherin wee] wherby wee have contynued the Lone of ½ doller vppon o^r^ goodes firmed vnder the hand of o^r^ Secretery. Not doubting but the same being well executed. All necessarie [supplies for] charge and disbursement will by this meanes and by the consulage largely be supplied. And thus having no other occasion to inlarge further at this tyme wee cõmitt you to god. London 1599 Marche.

this of marche 1599.

To o^r verie Lovinge frend m^r John Saunderson..
merchaunt [at] resident at Constantynople.

Per le exchaunge.

FTER o^r verie hartie cõmendacions wee have re^d yor Lr̃es of the 17 November [p the] wth yor former therin related and touching yor opinion of o^r tolleration of the dutche for ther peaceable traffique in Turkey wee concurre wth you and hold it fitt to enterteyne them kindelie. [wherby] to thend wee might receave benefite by ther consulage, but as yo^u have had some experience of the frenche Ambassado^r his opposition against ther cõminge vnder o^r Consullage, soe hathe it appeared here by complaint made to her ma^ie by the frenche Ambassado^rs liedges [hee] howe they take to hart the obteyning of the dutche nation vnder [them] ther Ambassado^r in Turkey wherfore vntill [S^r] Signio^r Paull Pinder hath bene heer and that her ma^ie hath bene made acquainted wth all proceadinges Wee knowe not what corse to advyse therein.

Yo^r care of the supplyinge the provision and wantes of Mr Lyllo her ma^ies Ambassad^r wee can not but take in verie thankefull part and think [o^r sel] the Companie beholdinge to yo^u therein and for firme and sufficient order to be geaven yo^u for his furnishing according as is fitt wee [have] are also carefull yet do wee not see what other [more] or [firmer] or better cowrse wee can take therein then by gen̄all consent and order of Court to agree [vppon a course] to charge o^r goodes [beinge vnder his aucthoritie and comaund] comyng into Turkey ether to Constantinople Alexandretta or els wher to beare suche a levie as wee by our consent have imposed vppon them, and howsoever some wilfull and vnbrideled yonge heddes have for some other respectes shewed their stomakes yet the order in it self is both firme and verie sufficient to [releve] afforthe suche [meanes of 1599 Marche. supplie] [the suche] payments as therby wee intended, and noe doubt vppon better [considered] consideration of the matter wilbe so accepted and obeyed by those who haue most hotly opposed them selfes against it.

Wee resolving vppon all good and ready meanes to supply his L. accordinge to agreem^t do finde none soe apte as the contynuaunce of the Lone of ½ doller vppon everie kersye, every C^th of Tynn and C^th of Cony skins, that come into Turkey together wth the consulage of the same goodes. And therfore have ordered that the same Lone shalbe contynued and rep^d here againe by exchaunge at [iiij^s] v^s vj^d the doller. vntyll the companie shall vppon further consideration otherwyse advyse. and to that ende wee have written to his L. to make his billes [by exchaung] vppon the consull at Aleppo for the payment of so much as wth the receipts at Consta: shall make vp 3000 c^ns ꝑ anñ as his occasions shall [move him] nedefully import him not doubtinꝗ but the same together wth the graund signio^r his allowaunce (the contynuaunce whereof we nothinꝗ doubt) will very lyberally defray his expences. to ye contynuaunce of wch course of chardging o^r goodes wee were the rather induced to avoyde[th] bothe yor and the ambassado^rꝯ trowble in seeking credite to supplie his occasions.

As touchinge the disposing of the Galata house wherin yo^u depende vppon o^r order wee [are of] wee thinke it fytt to be sold and made away to the best comoditie and advauntage. And wee wishe the same to be done yf it might be w^thout bestowing anie further chardge thervppon, but yf yo^u thinke the Ruynes thereof being not in some sorte repaired would hinder vs more in the sale theñ. [some small charge the forbearing of] a matter of some small charg thervppon bestowed would amount vnto wee referre vs to yor good consideration [therin and leave it who doe] to take suche course therein as yo^u shall thinke may best advaunce the [o^r] sale still holding it for o^r full resolution that the same [is] shalbe sold away.

a secretery. And wher yo^u write that the Ambassado^r is credito^r to the Company 1000 ch^ns when the accoumptes are come to o^r handes and wee see howe the same doeth ryse wee shall god willing geave his L. satisfacon.

1599 Marche.

5 p m[l] for the allowaunce 30 y[e] ambassador[s] purchase.

Wee have considered of yo[r] motion for allowaunce [of] for yo[r] paines in the collecting of the consulage and Lone money. and have agreed to allow yo[u] fyve vppon the 1000 of all moneys by yo[u] collected according to o[r] orders praying you to accepte thereof in good part and for yo[r] better warraunt for the collection of the lone money wee sende yo[u] herew[th] the copie of o[r] severall actes contynued for the [collection] levyinge thereof firmed vnder the hande of o[r] secretary.

This being kepte vntill the of marche 99 [and] wee vppon further consideration of the disposing of the gallata howse do chang o[r] former opinion touching the sale of the same. and do pray yo[u] [to] carefully to consider of the necessarie wantes of repacons thereof, and to supplie the same as frugallie and carefully as yo[u] can, and then to lett out the same for the most advauntage and benefite that it may reasonably make by yerelie rent to suche of the company as shall neade it bothe for the discharge of the Rent w[ch] we pay and the benefyte of the company by the overplus of the Rent that it may yeld. Reteyninge the same still in the companies handes for that [may] many of vs are of opinion that ther may [may] be vse of the same howse bothe for the company in generall and for the[r] factors in pticler in respecte whereof the sale of the same is altogether to be [respected] forborne. Thus having not at this tyme any further cause to inlarge, we comit yo[u] to god London this [of] of Marche 1599. Y[r] loving frends.

To my very lovinge frend M[r] Byddell preacher [preacher] at Aleppo.

Sr Since I was chosen to the place of the Governo[r] of the Companie I re[d] a lre from yo[u] directed to the generaltie w[ch] I publyshed at a generall Courte and the same being read [to the generalyty] the company have [they have] according to yo[r] desire [they have] agreed that what money soever shall fall out dewe vnto you besides that w[ch] yo[u] have re[d] shall be aunswered to m[r] Cockes after the rate of 50[li] p 1599 Marche. anñ according to ye Agreement betweene the Companie and yo^u and yor wages to begynne at Michas 1598 and that money wch y^ou have already re^d to be rated vnto yo^u at v^s the doller. And touching the money impresed vnto you wch was x^li. albeit the same was entended by the Company to be only lent to supply yor neceessarie provision and to be [and] discoumpted vppon y^r wages yet for yor better incoragem^t and comforte in y^r charge they are content freely to bestowe it vppon yo^u as [a g] ther guift and gratuyty besides y^r enterteynment agreed vppon. Not doubting but [that] according to the good opinion they have conceaved of yo^u and the good report they heare of yo^u hetherto yo^u will contyneue and proceade in yor charge both [to] in the instruccon of o^r people [and in the repr] in knowledg of Religyon and in reproving and rebuking whatsoeuer yo^u shall ether see or be dewly informed of to [be] deserve reproof or [admonis] admonition And soe comending yo^u and yor charge [to god] to almightie god wth my harty comendacons I conclude for this tyme.

Y^{r} verie Loving frend/

To my very Loving frend m^{r} Jo Saunderson. 1600 12 Sept.

AFTER my verie harty cõmendacõns. I re^{d} [of] yo^{rs} of the 25 of may, wth a post script of the seventh of June wherin yo^{u} make relation that yo^{u} had written divers Lr̃es. whereof yo^{u} have re^{d} noe aunswere. and as touching the [the] ambassado^{rs} provision supplied by yor [meanes] meanes and credite, and his terme therein served wee toke knowledge thereof by o^{r} Lr̃es sent by thexchaunge and therin noted the Companies acceptation [of] [acknowledgment] of yor good service. And ther resolution of the meanes howe [the said] his Lp̃ shuld be supplied hereafter videlt by the Lone of ½ doller vppon [a kersey] every kersy, every Cth of tynne &c. together wth the Consulage money. to wch Lr̃es I referre myself [because wee have advyse of the aryvall] presumyng that longe since the same are come to yor handes and o^{r} order [touching] in that behalf beinge written not only in the lr̃es directed to yo^{u} but in his Lp^{s} ꝑre and alsoe in [the] o^{r} Lr̃e directed to the Consull of Alleppo. And as touching the outrages rapyns and robberies of o^{r} englishe men of warre in the straight^{e} wee have very ernestly enforced the complaint thereof not onlie to [y^{e}] the L. admirall but also to all the residewe of the LL. of the Councell: so as wee doubt not but that order wilbe taken hereafter for the prevention [thereof] of those mischiefes.

The Billes of exchaunge made vppon the Company for moneys [del] taken vp for his Lp^{s} vse in the factors of m^{r} Leet and m^{r} Salter are accepted [to yor Likinge] and shalbe [discharged] satisfyed as conveniently as they may. The late troubles offered to ye company to supplant vs out of o^{r} trade by others who were ready to vndertake to pay to her ma^{ie} an imposition of v^{s} vj^{d} vppon every Cth of curraunce vj duckett^{e} vppon every but of [wyne] muskadell v^{s} vppon every barrell of oyle whereof I make no doubt [yo^{u} have had advyse] advyse hath come to Constantynople divers waies hath bene the cause why yor expectation hath not bene aunswered by Lr̃es from hence for that whiles these troubles held the Company were so disturbed [that they could] and so distracted that they could not resolve [whose] howe to directe ther owne busines nor assure them selfes of the having of the trade. But these [troubles] stormes being overblowen. wee hope wee shalbe able to hold a better corespondency [in the] not only in the enterco^{r}se of o^{r} Lr̃es and advyses but in all other thing^{e} concerning the trade and government of the Company. The said troubles hath driven vs to vndertake the trade at the yerelie ferme of 4000^{li} [ꝑ anñ and] to be freed of all the said impositions and to have o^{r} priveledges renewed, wch priviledges are not yet vnder the great seale. by reason whereof we can not proceade to order o^{r} government as wee hereafter entende. and therfore I am to pray yo^{u} to have patience touching yor demaunde of increase of consideration vntill o^{r} estate be setled [and] and a course resolved howe the Queenes ferme and all other o^{r} needful charges shalbe supported And thus for this tyme [I cease cõmitting wth] I cease cõmytting yo^{u} to god. London the 12 of September. 1600. 1600 12 Sept.

Yo^{r} loving frende

T. Smythe Go^{r}.

To Mr May at Constantynople. 1600 11 Sept.

[S^{r} I cõmende me verie hartely vnto yo^{u} yo^{u}]

^{r}. After my verie harty cõmendacõns. Whereas yo^{u} were enterteyned by the company to goe for Aleppo and ther to preache the worde and minister the sacrament to o^{r} nation ther resident [in] the exercyse whereof [in wch ministery ther] toke not soe good effecte as I for my part and the residewe of the company could have wished it had. Soe as by the discontentem^{t} and disagreement betwene o^{r} facto^{rs} and yo^{u} wee were occasioned to sende m^{r} Beddle [to minister at Aleppo] to supply yor place entendinge that yo^{u} shuld have come directly for England not wthstanding contrary to o^{r} expectation and order yo^{u} have gone vp to Constantynople, and ther remained ever since. the company still expecting yor returne for England wch at lengeth they pceaving yo^{u} entended not hath moved them at a Generall court to geave order for yor coming home. Therfore thes are to [pray and] require yo^{u} that [yo^{u}] vppon the receipte of thys my Lr̃e by order of the Companie to yo^{u} directed in that behaulf [to] you do prepare yor self to come for England by the next and spediest meanes that shalbe offered yo^{u} by shipping or other [meanes] wyse by land soe that the Company be not occasioned by yor stay [ther] contrary to ther order to growe into further [encrease] myslyke towardes yo^{u} And soe [wishing y] as one vnaquainted wth yo^{u} yet wishing yo^{u} well I cõmytt yo^{u} to god

11 Sept.

To ye L. Ambassado^r at Constantynople.

IT may please y^r [hono^r] L to be aduertysed that I re^cd y^r generall lr̃e of the 21 June together wth the [inclosed] copies of the frenche Ambassadors proceadinge against y^r self and o^r nation [generally] wch proceadinges wee have exhibited to m^r secretary and the residewe of the Ll. of her ma^es Councell who do alledge that the frenche king [in the] doeth greatly wronge her ma^ie in the translation of her lr̃e written vnto him concerning the [plane speeche] motion of peace wth Spaine and the appointing of the place of the Comissioners meeting, alledging that the lr̃e is not to that purpose but muche falsefyed, as we doubt not but yor L shalbe better advertysed by m^r Secretary hereafter whom we meane to solicyte to wryte [to y^r L.] vnto you the trueth of that matter, Of the outrages of o^r mẽ of warre in the Levant seas wee had informed both the L. Admirall and the residew of the Ll. before the frenche information came to o^r handes having re^cd severall advyses thereof [by both] from Aleppo and other places in the Levant, wherin wee hope ther wilbe some redresse vsed. and wee are sewters and are in hope to obteyne some warraunt of redresse of these peines to be graunted vnto vs in o^r priviledges, wch are nowe to be renewed Whereof and of the trowbles we have lately had touching the payment of impositions vppon curraunce wyne and oyles. and howe we are drawen to pay a ferme of 4000^li p ann̄ to the Queene because I presume you are certefyed thereof by other meanes I forbeare to enlarge herein. [only] Only observing this to yor L. that the great trouble charge and heavy ferme nowe being laid vppon o^r trade will drive vs assone as we have o^r priviledges confermed a newe to devyse the best remidies wee may to governe the same in good order. Whereof wee will hereafter more at large acquainte you [yor L.] And so for this tyme I take my leave of yor L.

London this 11 of [M] September.

To Mr Colthurst Consull at Alleppo. 1600 11 Sept.

Yor Last of the 22th of January written to Mr. Staper hath bene [publyshed to the Company] considered of and deliuered over to me wherby you seeme contented to be lymited to a certen allowaunce to begynne [for a yere] the seconde of ffebruary for a yere. wch we doubt not vppon the proof of one yere you shall haue cause to accept for a longer tyme The charges of or trade by reason of the late disturbaunce offered vs and the great demaunde of impositions endevored to be raysed vppon vs, wch is nowe brought to a ferme of 4000li ꝑ anñ whereof (because I knowe you have bene advysed and certefyed [thereof] by other meanes I refrayne to make discourse) will necessaryly vrge vs to loke to or meanes [wh] howe this great charg and burthen wilbe supported and therfore we are to entreat [the] yor best advyse and likewyse the advyse of others of best experience in the trade [howe] for or better direction therein. The outrages rcd by englishe men of warre in the Levant seas [hathe] have bene related by vs both to my L. admirall and to the LL. of the Councell wherin wee are promysed a course of redresse. Our priviledges being to be renewed vnder the Great Seale [and] wch is not yet done [maketh vs] will geave vs occasion and good warraunt when they are confirmed to advyse of some good courses of government howe or trade shalbe better guided both heare and in Turkye [and or great payment and charges defrayed] vntyll wch tyme we can not resolve of such advyse and directions as shalbe necessary for vs to consider of and to putt in execution. Therfore I will forbeare to enlarge any further at this tyme [but] vntill some better opportunety and so wth my very harty cõmendacõns cõmytt you to god. London this 11th of September.

Company of Levant Merchants.
Several drafts of letters in the East India Company's Record Book tending to show that the East India Company was partially an outgrowth of the Levant Company, as several persons mentioned appear to have been prominent members of both companies, notably, Sir Thomas Smith (see 62 and 281), who was governor of both companies, 265-83, viz. :—
Letter to Mr. Lyllo, ambassador at Constantinople: instructions as to the differences with the French respecting consulage, &c.; orders to desist from all contention but to lose no advantage; Signior Paul Pinder sent home to acquaint Her Majesty of the doings of the French; complaints to the Queen by the French ambassador's lieges in London; private advices sent by Mr. Staper; accounts sent home by Signior Paul Pinder; amount of salary offered and how to be provided for; no bills of exchange to be drawn but a levy to be charged on all goods entering Constantinople and Aleppo to meet the charges of the ambassador and consul; troubles arising out of bills drawn by the late ambassador Mr. Barton in favour of John Bate and payment refused by the company; Mr. Bate's proposed course to recover his money; instructions to preserve the honour and credit of Her Majesty and the company and to avoid the errors of Mr. Barton; further instructions as to the rivalry with the French as to the Dutch consulage, &c.; Acts of Court and instructions for enforcing the levy on goods, 265-70.
Letter to Mr. Colthurst, consul at Aleppo: he is dissatisfied with the offer of half the consulage, as he fears a falling off of trade on account of the discovery of the East Indies by the Dutch; it is thought the Dutch will prefer peaceable trade in Turkey to the perils of the East India voyages; duties to be levied on goods entering Turkish ports to maintain his charges and those of the ambassador at Constantinople and thus avoid bills of exchange on Venice; instructions respecting the rivalry with the French as to Dutch consulage; orders for the prevention of private trade to Marseilles (Marcelles); Sir Anthony Shurley's doings in Persia; Acts of Court for the duties to be levied, 270-2.
Letter to John Saunderson, merchant at Constantinople: the toleration of the Dutch trade in Turkey; the French rivalry as to the Dutch consulage, &c.; Signior Pinder sent home to acquaint the Queen as to the proceedings of the French; thanks for supplying the wants of the ambassador; proposed course for meeting the ambassador's charges in future; instructions for selling, repairing, or letting the Galata House; the ambassador creditor for 1,000 cheskeens; allowance for the collection of consulage, 273-75.
Letter to Mr. Byddell, preacher at Aleppo: his salary £50 per annum; gratuity of £10 allowed; his good character, 275-6.
Letter to ———, factor at Scanderona (?): invoices sent of the goods shipped in the "Exchange;" orders to seize all goods not invoiced; complaints of impartial dealing; trouble with mariners refusing to carry goods into the magazines; all goods received or shipped to be certified to the Company, 276-7.
Petition to the Privy Council respecting the Company's ships seized at Venice as restitution for the late prize taken by the English men-of-war, 277-8.
Letter to Mr. Colthurst, Consul at Aleppo, to attend to the affairs of the late Mr. Edward Rose, factor there, 278-9.
Letter to John Saunderson: the ambassador's allowance and steps taken to support it; the trouble arising out of the action of the English men-of-war in the Straits; bills of exchange will be paid; troubles arising through the opposition of parties offering to pay imposts on certain goods to the Queen; the Company agree to pay £4,000 per annum to the Queen for a renewal of privileges and in lieu of imposts; Saunderson's demand for increase of salary, 279-81.
Letter to Mr. May, ex-preacher at Aleppo, ordering him to come home at once, 281.
Letter to the ambassador at Constantinople: the Queen's letter respecting peace with Spain falsified in translation by the French king; the outrages by the English men-of-war in the Levant; the payment of £4,000 per annum to the Queen in lieu of imposts on wine, oil, &c.; privileges to be confirmed, 282.
Letter to Mr. Colthurst: as to his allowance; the payment of £4,000 per annum to the Queen; privileges about to be renewed under the great seal; the outrages by the men-of-war, 283.

market would be found for a liberal sale of clothes and kersies to the general advancement of English trade; resolved therefore that the voyage to the North West be set forth with all convenient expedition; two ships or pinnaces to be employed; every adventurer to contribute at least 12*d.* in the £ on the amount of his adventure for the voyage by the Cape; if the discovery be made every man to participate in the benefit in proportion to his adventure, and in all future voyages in the same ratio only; dates for the payment of adventures; Mr. Cambell appointed treasurer; any one declining to adventure or being behind time in his payments to be fined 5 times the value of his levy at 12*d.* in the £ to be deducted from his original stock, such fines to be employed in the preparation of the voyage, and any surplus proportionately divided; all future contributions or levies for the general trade to be paid on the days appointed on pain of fines in the discretion of the company or of the auditors; penalty for absence from a general court, 12*d*; for being late, 6*d.*; no one to speak on any one matter more than three times, penalty, 3*s.* 4*d.*; penalty for uncivil speeches or behaviour, 10*s.*; no one to interrupt another in a speech or disturb by private whisperings, but all replies to be directed to the governor or deputy on pain of penalty, 2*s.* 6*d.*; silence to be kept at the stroke of the hammer, penalty, 6*d.*: penalty for non-payment of fines, imprisonment; no person to leave a general court without leave, penalty, 12*d.*; all fines to be employed to the general use of the company or to the relief of the poor, 197-202; committee for the preparation of the North West Voyage, 202-3; the tardiness of payment of contributions for the North West Voyage reported at a general court; the expenses already incurred amount to £700, all which would be lost, and the company discredited at home and abroad if the voyage did not proceed; resolved therefore for further encouragement that all sums brought in shall be deemed part of the adventure for the voyage to the Cape, and shall bear profit and benefit in that voyage in proportion with the original stock; the act for the forfeiture of five times the value of the levy by defaulters confirmed and fortified, and ordered that suit be made to the Privy Council to approve the same; those present set down their contributions in writing that their consent may appear to those absent, and all contributions to be endorsed on the bills of adventure; all contributions to be brought in by the end of March, 1602, after which date no payments to be received without the consent of a general court, 206 8; committees appointed to provide victuals and other necessaries for the North West Voyage, 209; articles of agreement with Captain Waymouth with his orders and instructions, 211-14, viz., the company's desire to discover a nearer passage to the East Indies (see page 182, Waymouth's suggestions); Captain Waymouth considered a fit and proper person to attempt the discovery, and is allowed £100 to furnish his instruments to his own choice; two ships committed to his charge, the "Discovery" and the "Godspeed," manned, victualled, and furnished for 16 months to his own desires, and also laden with various merchandise; Waymouth agrees to be ready to sail by a certain date and to proceed towards the coast of Greenland into Davies Straits, thence to the north west "or as he shall fynd the Passage best to lye" towards the kingdoms of Cataya or China "or ye backside of America," without giving up the attempt as long as he shall find those seas navigable, or any possibility of finding a passage, and will not return or suffer voluntarily any of his company to return till a year has been bestowed on the attempt; agreed for merchants and pursers to go in the ships to keep a register of goods laden and how disposed of, also to make notes, journals, and observations for the direction and help of posterity; within 10 days of his return to deliver a report of all his proceedings, and within 40 days on a summons to appear before the company and relate such things as they desire to be informed of, and will not discover the secrets of the voyage to any person whatsoever; within 40 days of his return the company will on proof of his having arrived at any port in China, Cataya, or Japan by the North West Passage pay unto him £500, but if the passage be not discovered it is agreed that he is to make no claim for salary, wages, or reward, seeing that the expense of the voyage was undertaken at his persuasion and on his resolution to adventure his life for the good of his country, 211-14; agreement with John Cartwright to go as preacher in the North West Voyage with salary contingent on the discovery of the passage, 216; the agreement with Waymouth read to the generality, also the Queen's letters to the Emperor of China and Kathia, 217; auditors chosen to report on the state of the adventure, that further supplies may be called up and some course taken with the defaulters, 217-18; day appointed for the payment of supplies for the North West Voyage; the rateable and voluntary supplies to be endorsed on all bills of adventure, and the secretary then to make out new bills showing in one lump sum what is every man's interest in the voyage by the Cape, 220 (see 206-8); order to the bookkeeper to enter up each adventurer's credits in a lump sum, 224; election of treasurer, secretary, book-keeper, and beadle, 226; election of governor, deputy, and committees, 225-26; the return of the North West expedition, 227, see North West Passage; Mr. Holliday and others being in arrears with supplies for the North West Voyage, it is ordered that the same be deducted from their stock, 231 (see pages 200 and 207); the book-keeper ordered to charge up the accounts of all brethren debtors to the company, that the amounts may be defaulted on their stock if not paid before the return of the ships, 233; proceedings against Waymouth before the lords of the council; deliberations and preparations for a second voyage; the idea of a second voyage abandoned, and the ships and stores ordered to be sold off; dispute with Waymouth as to his demands for charges, and the same referred to arbitration, &c., &c., 232-42, see North West Passage; join with the East India Co. prefer to deal in the discovery by themselves, but will assign no time for so doing; the importance of the enterprise urged, and a committee appointed to confer again, to the end that if the Muscovia Co. will undertake the discovery, they may be left to proceed in it, but if otherwise then to request them to join with the East India Co. on conditions formerly propounded; and if they will do neither, a relation to be made to the Privy Council of their refusal and hindering of the East india Co. in the intended discovery, and the Muscovia Co. to be required to answer in writing, 191; in consequence of a better opinion conceived of the strength of their privileges, the East India Co. resolve to attempt the voyage alone; ordered that adventurers shall write their contributions at once, and any person refusing, to be excluded from all benefit during the term of the patent, and all profit in the discovery to rest proportionately in those who will adventure, 92; the Privy Council learning that by reason of the difference between the two companies the preparation of the voyage is delayed, wrote to the Muscovia Co. to either join with the East India Co., or else bring their patent before the Council to show their claim to their privileges, 194; the Muscovia Co. thereupon agree to act jointly with the East India Co., 195; the subscription book to be sent round that everyone may set down his adventure or else refuse, and those who refuse to be exempted from all benefit in the discovery for ever, 195; the amounts adventured to be brought in within a month, 195; the committees of both companies to meet from time to time to agree on the preparations of the voyage, &c., 195; doubts arising as to the powers of either Co. to subdivide themselves and unite partially with each other, it is ordered that counsel's opinion be taken thereon, 195; counsel's opinion that the interest in the discovery rests expressly with the East India Co. and that no company can divide their privileges or grant a portion of their rights to another company, 196; finally resolved that the voyage shall be prepared and a committee appointed to expedite the same and to devise laws and ordinances for the general guidance of business, 196-97; the laws and ordinances devised and the main object of the proposed discovery set forth together with the details for the preparation of the voyage, 198-202, see East India Co.; £30 allowed to Waymouth for his instruments, 204;
